

Assignment Instructions

In this assignment, you'll dive into the intersection of literacy and social justice, exploring how literacy can either empower or exclude communities. Choose a relevant social justice issue—like wage disparities or racial discrimination—and critically analyze how it's communicated, paying close attention to the language, accessibility, and impact on different audiences. Connect your topic to a real-world campaign or initiative, and propose strategies to make the communication more inclusive and effective for all literacy levels. This project gives you a chance to critically reflect on the role of literacy in social change.

This assignment can be done as a group assignment with instructor permission
